LA PLATA INAUGURATION.

The solemn installation of the Provincial Authorities in the new Capital was a feast unmarked by accident or contretemps of any description, and accompanied with every pleasure and delight that could be afforded such a fete. The train from the Plaza Constitucion took the chief notabilities, members of Government, Judiciary, Legislature, etc., whilst the train from the Central Station took perhaps even a larger number of citizens, the majority of whom availed of the invitation to visit for the first time in their lives the new Provincial Capital. To enumerate all who were at the feast would be simply impossible, since both trains were crowded to their very utmost, but at the Plaza Constitucion the gathering was so great that it was hard to get a seat in the long train. Governor Rocha was not in the train, having left the day previously for La Plata, to see to the arrangements. We noticed present the following distinguished gentlemen :—

Vice-Governor Gonzalez Chaves; Dr Villamayor, Minister of Hacienda; Dr. Jorge, Minister of Government; Mr. Frank Parish, President of Great Southern Railway; Mr. W H Moores, Chairman Local Board Directors; Dr. Diego Alvear; Dr Romero, ex-Minister of Hacienda; Mr Barrington, H.B.M. Chargé d'Affaires; Dr Anciros, Archbishop of Buenos Aires; Generals Levalle and Mansilla, Carlos Guido Spano, Dr Nicolas Achaval, Director of Schools; Canon Carranza, Dr. Aguilar, Dr. Miguel Navarro Viola, Bernardo Calderon, Juan J Lanusse, Aide-de-camp Floro Vega, Dr Llambi Campbell, Francisco Uriburu, Julio Ardito, Eulogio Enciso, Alberto Ugalde, Eugenio Sicardi, Chaves Lopez, Juan A Dominguez, Ramon A Toledo, Baldasario Huergo, Juan B Martinez, Ortiz de Rozas, Pedro Bernet, Antonio Carlone, Jose Fernandez, Emilio Vidal, Mauricio Mayer, Reinaldo Otero, Luis N Basail, Matias Cardoso, Salvador J Sosas, Alberto Lartigau, Julio Dantas, Pedro Landin, Florencio Madero, Dr Manuel Langheim, Dr Manuel Cespedvia, Dr. Valentin Curutchet, Miguel Cano, Signier, Jose P y Angulo, Gonzalez Naon, Marcos Avellaneda, Natal Torres, Ladislao Martinez, Julio Botet, Jose Hernandez, Dr. Elzaguirre, Isaac Gil, Andrade, Martinez Carmona, General Luis M Campos, Cabrera, Carranza Marmol, Hortensio Miguens, Balcazar Moreno, Mariano Bernal, Mateo Victorica, Cuaglia, Dr Arce, Belin Sarmiento, Jacob Lozain, Justo P. Ortiz, Ministro Español, Sr. Duran y Cuerbo, Luis Goyena, Medici, Ignacio Freyre, Juan Dillon, M Casares, W Jacobs, A Shaw, Angel Estrada, Miguel Plaza Montero, M Casaval and hundreds of others whose names we forget.

The morning was delightful, and the train arrangements perfect, and up to the high reputation of the Buenos Ayres Great Southern Railway. The suburbs looked most inviting, and the quintas and chacras on all sides charming. At Temperley we found large gangs of workmen preparing the ground for the new station, and here we started off from the main line and headed due East, running through a district of country new to most of us. All the lands hereabouts and stretching from Temperley until we arrive at the great Bell estancia are in the hands of 'chacareros.' Hedges, roads and lanes intersected the country and gave it a beautiful and civilized aspect. The few stations on this branch railway are small, yet they must be of immense convenience to the neighbours. At a station called San Juan, there was a local band posted on the platform that discoursed some elegant airs, but the view of the River Plate at this point was superior to the rustic music, and we know of no country about the city, except San Isidro, that affords more charming views than the camps through which we passed. The line runs close to the Bell estancia, which with its fine house, monte and numerous ricks of hay, has a very comfortable appearance. Mr. Bell's land stretches up to the very portals of the new capital and must be immensely valuable, possibly beating the New Zealand figure of £40 per acre. We saw some of Mr. Bell's sheep feeding up close to the brick kilns of the town, and they certainly seemed to us capital sheep.

The railway entry to La Plata is surpassingly beautiful owing to the track running through a magnificent Eucalyptus carriage road, formed and planted years ago by the late Mr Iraola, the former propietor of the whole town's land; for squares and squares the tall Eucalyptus trees fringe the track in double rows on each side, and emerging from this shady track you enter the streets of the town, the train running right in front of the new church and up to the very centre of the new city. On one side of the street is a magnificent Eucalyptus monte, possibly counting over 100,000 trees, planted and grown with such care and such exactness that at any angle the trees form the most perfect and straight lines of narrow avenues. This 'bosque' which, we may say, is in the very town itself, forms a most delicious park in the hot summer weather for the burghers, and we have never seen any other city or town with so dense a wood up to the very shops in the street. The train drew up in front of the church door, and we all got out in the presence of lines of Nat. Guards and policemen admirably uniformed and drawn up along the Railway track.

Amidst a din of bell ringing, rocket firing, and cheering we proceeded on foot to the magnificent Government House building, called the Ministerio de Hacienda, which is really a larger and far more pretentious building than the Prov. Government House in Calle Moreno. Two other similarly large and grand buildings in other parts of the town are in construction, one for the Ministerio del Gobierno, and the other for the Governor. It is impossible to convey to the reader an idea of the public buildings of La Plata, it is necessary to go out and see them. The palatial corridor of the building termed the Ministerio de Hacienda reminded us of the corridor of the Trocadero in Paris, such is its style and magnificence. Here Governor Rocha with his secretaries and aides de-camp received; as the halls, saloons, parlors, reception rooms are all superbly carpeted and furnished, and when we all had time to take chairs and feel ourselves as home, H.E. made the following address :—

Gentlemen.

This day will be commemorated as the date of one of the greatest acts of abnegation and patriotism on the part of the province of Buenos Aires in favour of Argentine Nationality. It has already had an influence, and will have a still greater one, on the prosperity and stability of our institutions; but events of this kind require the seal of Time to make them lasting and respected. Passionate convictions and exaggerated feelings may raise doubts in public opinion, disturb men's minds and postpone the consequences of faith in these great political events. But, from this day forward there can be no pretext or reason for doubt, as we to-day ratify in fact and in law the cession of the city of Buenos Aires for Capital of the Republic, for the honour and glory of all Argentines, including the sons of Buenos Aires.

On this 15th of April 1884 I, therefore, solemnly declare the public authorities of the province of Buenos Aires installed in the city of La Plata, definite capital of the said province.

Gentlemen of the Supreme Court; Gentlemen of the Legislature, I ask you to take formal possession of the buildings intended for you in this city and to join me in thanking the Almighty for the event of to-day, begging that your prayers may be sincere, so that it may prove the precursor of great progress for the Republic and the province of Buenos Aires."

Just as the Governor had concluded his speech, the following telegram from the President of the Republic was handed to H.E.

The President of the Republic to the Governor of Buenos Aires :—

Very late yesterday I received your invitation to attend the fetes in celebration of the removal of the provincial authorities to La Plata, and, for this reason as well as the fatigue incident to my excursion to the North and West of the province, I find it impossible to assist at the interesting ceremony.

Nevertheless, I cannot allow this day to pass without sending you my best wishes that this crowning act of the grand and patriotic solution recently given to our internal organization may take place under the happiest auspices, and that the new capital of the province of Buenos Aires may promptly attain the rank and importance it deserves.

Accept the congratulations of your friend.

Julio A. Roca.

The Archbishop now arrived from the church, and we all started for the Te Deum and High Mass. The church arrangements were admirable, but we noted many vacant chairs in the high-up circles, and everyone spoke of the absence of the Governor Elect, Dr. D'Amico. We believe, however, he was prevented from attending by the death of one of the members of his family.

After the chaunting of the Te Deum, at which Archbishop Angiros officiated, Canon Lopez mounted the pulpit. He said that La Plata would be prosperous, wealthy, great and peaceful, being placed by its founder under the protection of God and the Christian religion. He told his hearers that Nineveh, Carthage, Babylon and Rome had perished—morally some, the rest materially—because their rulers were not believers in the Divine power, and that the world's progress began to be felt only from that day when the spirit of God, assuming mortal shape, the dogmas of Christianity were implanted in many cities. He concluded, declaring in frank but decided terms that the clerical party was allied in politics with that of Dr. Rocha.

At the close of the sermon the Governor and Archbishop led the way, and the whole company walked to the railway depot, where a magnificent banquet was served by Mr Canale of the Confiteria del Aguila, covers for 400, but not fully that number attended, as we saw at some of the tables a few vacant chairs. The banquet was superb, and fully up to the high reputation of the famed Aguila. Sr. Calderon, Chief of Police of the Province, opened the toasts by drinking to the health of Gov. Rocha and his new capital La Plata. This brought the Governor on his legs; he spoke in his usual forcible and eloquent style. He regretted that the first Municipality of La Plata was named by the Government instead of being elected by the people. He spoke of the tremendous task the Government had undertaken in founding La Plata, the new capital of the Province, and said that its success was due to the feelings of patriotism, love for Argentine nationality, and affection for Provincial Institutions, that carried them triumphant over so many difficulties, and culminated in the grand feast at which they now assisted. The sons of Buenos Aires in La Plata shall ever be the sons of the city of Buenos Aires founded by Garay. (Great Cheers.) General Mansilla next rose and read his speech, which elicited frequent and tremendous applause; we hope to get a copy of the General's speech to publish in our next, as it was very forcible and to the point. Several other gentlemen made short speeches afterwards, but the crowd and din were so great, and the depot, lighted up beautifully with electric light, so large that it was impossible to hear the speakers. The Archbishop made a short and impressive speech; then followed Messrs. Guido-Spano, Hernandez, Achaval, Rodriguez and Kier. Governor Rocha closed the speeches by a very fine address; he spoke of how often he feared that the difficulties that opposed the foundation of the Capital would triumph, but his faith in the cause and the assistance of his countrymen had overcome everything, and at last they could all say the Capital is firmly established and La Plata is that Capital (cheers). Portenos and Provincianos are always brothers and always Argentines (cheers).

As it was drawing near the hour for the train to start for Buenos Aires, we hurried from the table to have a look at the buildings &c., and by the greatest good luck we stumbled upon our old friend Mr Wilson Jacobs, who knew everything about the place, having visited it previously with Professor Kyle. We cannot press into a few hasty paragraphs all about the wondrous new Capital, but shall hold for to-morrow another special chapter on its buildings; all we can say is, that La Plata is certainly the wonder of the age; no history ancient or modern affords a parallel; if seeing is believing, then the crowds who visited La Plata on Tuesday must believe in it. Governor Rocha's programme was indeed a tremendous one, but to the letter he has carried it out, and it rests now with his successor, and perhaps succeeding events, whether this colossal enterprise be carried on with the same matchless energy and indomitable determination as that which has given reality to a mere political idea, and started from the very plains a city of palaces, and an empire Capital from the confines of a swamp.

The Senegale's Mails.

London, March 20th.

In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Broadhurst moved the second reading of the Leaseholders (Facilities for Purchase of Fee-Simple) Bill. The rejection of the measure was moved by Mr. Gregory; and in the subsequent debate Lord Lymington, Mr. Puleston, Mr. Heneage, Mr. T. Collins, Mr. Egerton, the Attorney-General, Lord Randolph Churchill, Sir Henry Wolff, Sir Hardinge Giffard, and other members took part, and on a division the Bill was rejected by 168 votes to 104.

Our Special Correspondent at Souakim telegraphs that yesterday morning during a reconnaissance to Otoa, eight miles beyond Handoob, in the direction of Berber, General Stewart met an Arab chief, who said that he would come to Souakim but for fear of Osman Digna. On Tuesday night a friendly sheik, with his followers, reached the camp at Handoob.

Another reconnaissance took place yesterday morning six miles on the road to the scene of the late battle. There were no signs of the rebels. The Commissariat throughout the campaign, says our correspondent, is highly praised by the troops.

Our correspondent informs us later that Captain Turner, with cwelve scouts, visited by direct route the scene of the battle and the Tamanieb Wells. There was no sign of the rebels, and their dead were still unburied, this last fact, adds our correspondent, forming a striking proof of the demoralization of the Arabs.

Our Cairo correspondent telegraphs that the Shagieh tribes intend holding the Sixth Cataract between Shendy and Khartoum. The passage of the Nile is difficult, and the situation is considered worse.

Our Geneva correspondent telegraphs that the Federal Council have received a police report relative to the late Socialistic movement in Switzerland, and have addressed a circular to the Cantons as to active measures in case of fresh disturbances.

Yesterday afternoon the Prince and Princess of Wales, accompanied by their daughters, opened, at St. Anne's-gate, the Westminster Training School and Home for Nurses, founded by the late Lady Augusta Stanley. The Prince, in reply to an address of welcome, expressed his belief that no more appropriate tribute could have been devised to perpetuate the memory of its foundress than that institution, designed to carry out the philanthropic objects to which she devoted so many years of her useful and valuable life.

Mr. Charles Veasey (Liberal) and Sir Robert Peel (Conservative) were yesterday nominated as candidates for the representation of Huntingdon, where the polling will take place to morrow.

Mr. J. F. B. Firth, M.P., presided last evening at the annual meeting of the London Municipal Reform League, held at the Cannon-street Hotel. The report was adopted, and Mr. Firth was re-elected president for the ensuing year.

A general conference of the friends of Sunday observance was opened at Exeter Hall yesterday afternoon, Lord Shaftesbury presiding. A resolution was passed declaring that the demand for the Sunday opening of public museums, art collections, picture galleries and libraries should be earnestly resisted. Mr. Stevenson, M.P., presided at the evening sitting.

Last evening the Lord Mayor entertained at the Mansion House the chairman and members of the Metropolitan Board of Works. His Lordship and Sir James McGarel-Hogg, M.P., spoke of the important duties discharged by the respective bodies of which they were the official heads, and defended them from many of the criticisms to which they had been subjected.

A meeting of the City and Guilds of London Institute for the Advancement of Technical Education was held yesterday at Mercers' Hall, the Lord Chancellor presiding. In opening the proceedings his lordship directed attention to the principal features of the institute's operations, and pointed out that nothing could be more striking or more satisfactory than the work which it was doing by its technical examinations, by which it diffused itt influence and the power of its superintendence over the whole of the United Kingdom.

Mr. H T. Barclay's Poloriscope won the Meynell Flat Race Plate at the Derby Hunt Meeting, and amongst the other results of the running were the following :—Devonshire Handicap Hurdle Race, Mr. W. Sadler's Stump Orator; Selling Hunters' Hurdle Race, Mr. T. Ludlow's Bayonet; Shipley Hall Handicap Steeplechase Plate, Mr. E. Jay's Oolah; Selling Handicap Hurdle Race Plate, Mr. W. Wright's Gosforth; Champion Steeplechase Plate, Duke of Hamilton's Captain; Harringson Steeplechase Cup, Mr. G. O. Browster's First Attempt.

The Bank of England yesterday received £752,000 in gold from abroad, making £1,373,000 sent in for the week. Discount rates were easier in consequence of the gold influx, but the stock markets were mostly dull and lower. The principal fall was 2¼ per ct. in Mexican Railway Ordinary stock. Consols remained at 101⅞, 102 for money, and 102, ⅛ for the account. The traffic returns of home railways were favourable.

BATTLE OF TAMASI, OR TAMAI, OR TAMAHID OR TAMANIEB.

CRITICISMS.

March 14th.

The military and general opinions that have been expressed so far on the behaviour and handling of the troops are :—

1. That even to the front ranks of the 2nd Brigade, which were overpowered by the fierce onset of the Arabs, all the men behaved splendidly. It is necessary to remember that the advanced companies of the 65th, York and Lancaster, had to bear the whole weight of the onset coming suddenly from the front and on the right flank, and as the 65th gave way and fell back on the 42nd Highlanders and Marines, the Arabs streamed round the left flank, when the 42nd gave way and the square collapsed, so that special correspondents on horseback, in the centre, could not move, and were naturally frightened out of their wits, as the ubiquitous Arabs wriggled in and out under the legs of man and horse. But the 2nd Brigade, when the 1st Brigade—consisting of the 75th Gordon Highlanders, the 89th Irish Fusiliers and 60th Rifles—came up like a wall of steel and as calm as if on parade, must have re-formed in an extraordinary short time, if, as is stated, the guns of the Naval Brigade were again in their hands in 15 minutes from the time of the Arab charge. Had there been no correspondents, the falling back of the advanced companies would hardly have been noticed, except as an incident common in all actions, as real soldiers know. The incident, such as it was, has been ascribed to the mode of attack and the want of proper handling of the companies.

2. The formation en potence or in square is liable to discover weakness at the angles which, in this instance, was aggravated by the too rapid and energetic charge of the front ranks, leaving gaps through which the enemy simply flowed in. They did not break through the square.

3. There seems to have been no advanced guard pushed forward to take the first edge off the enemy, whose mode of sudden attack from the shelter of pits, etc., had already been experienced at the battle of the Teb.

4. There was no horse artillery or independent batteries. The guns—Galings and Gardners—were rendered useless, blocked up in the square, when the momentary collapse took place.

THE FRANCHISE BILL.

(From our London Correspondent.)

If you have space, I recommend to your attention the following extracts from the Pall Mall Gazette in which you see as it were not in newspapers but with your own eyes Mr Gladstone, and hear him as he spoke and the House as it cheered and jeered :—

At last this preliminary skirmish was over; the vote to the late Speaker passed without a word; and Mr Gladstone was free to unfold the great and momentous change which he proposes in the Constitution of the country. Opinions differ as to the quality of the speech. There are those who prefer it to the memorable reply to Sir Stafford Northcote the other night on the Vote of Censure; but the general impression left was that it was magnificent as exposition, but did not rise, and made no pretence to rising, to eloquence. Nor did the House itself encourage rhetoric flight. The dominant feeling was an anxious curiosity to hear what the long-anticipated bill did really contain; and anxious curiosity is too strained a feeling to leave room for the enthusiastic and the inspiring cheer. There was, indeed, in Mr. Gladstone's whole air and manner something which accentuated the distinction between the two speeches. He began the reply to the Vote of Censure with vehement gesture, passionate manner, and in a voice strained almost to the cracking point; the fierce lava-tide swept poor Sir Stafford Northcote and his speech out of sight; and a depressed and a defeated party rose once more cheerful and self-confident. On this occasion it was the Opposition which was down-hearted; the Ministerialists were so cheerful that they did not require any arousing; and Mr. Gladstone accordingly was able to start in even tones and with tranquil manner. To be absolutely and realistically accurate, the small fact may further be noted, that when he came to make the mighty answer to the full and loud chorus of attack on Egypt, Mr Gladstone was supplied with a mysterious bottle containing a yellowish liquid—presumably sherry and eggs; while in the comparatively easy task of elucidating a Reform Bill he was content with an ordinary tumbler containing plain water or an innocuous syrup. The opening sentences were received tranquilly enough; and there was not a real outburst of feeling till he made his first jibe at the Opposition over the peasant. He was talking of the difficulty of dealing fairly with the agricultural labourer, and one of these difficulties was, he said, that 'we have opposite his friends,' a thrust at the sentimental sympathy of the squire with Hodge which told well. There was a certain venom in the applause which greeted the observation that the bill would put down abuses in the property vote, but a few moments after everybody was in good humour as he described the fagot vote, of which he had gained some knowledge in the Midlothian contest. A vote without residence averaged, said Mr Gladstone, one-eleventh in the total; "but," he went on, "I am familiar with a county"—but here the laughter interrupted him, and he was forced to pause for some moments before he was able to get out the fact that in this county the votes, separated from residence, amounted to one-fourth of the total. Laughter went on increasing as he described a single place of unpretending character which conferred no fewer than 45 votes; and the creation of fagot votes was declared to be the staple industry of a certain anonymous locality. The playful mood was, however, abandoned when he came to argue against the objection that the bill was not a complete bill. "There never has been a complete bill," exclaimed Mr Gladstone, in his loudest and most emphatic tones. There was a slight murmur from the Conservative benches when this proposition was laid before the House in all its unabashed nakedness; and then Mr. Gladstone used one of those rhetorical expedients the full force of which can never be described, and can as little be understood as some of the marvellous effects of Chatham. "Eh?" said Mr Gladstone, as if inviting definite contradiction; and holding up his hand to his ear as though anxious to catch the first precious word of substantiated contradiction. But there was no reply. Sir Stafford Northcote looked to the floor, his colleagues put on the air of men not easily caught; and even the corncrake note of Mr. Warton rose not on the air. Gradually Mr. Gladstone allowed himself once again to get into the playful mood; and the House cracked its convivial sides—though here and there was a slight note of comic dissent—when, in illustrating one of his propositions, he declared that Archbishop Howley was the very worst speaker in the House of Lords. Shortly after, he came to one of the critical points of the speech. The Irish members had heretofore listened in a semi-detached reticence; but when Mr. Gladstone announced that the uniformity of the franchise in the three countries was a principle of the bill 'from which nothing will induce us to depart' they let themselves out and cheered. Still more pronounced was their joy when they heard the Prime Minister declare—and back the declaration with impressive argument—that there should be no reduction in the number of their members. After this point, Mr. Gladstone was chiefly concerned in discouraging to his own followers. There were vehement, minatory, and prolonged cheers as he declared that this bill had nothing to fear from "direct opposition," and there was likewise strong expression of approval when he appealed against the garrulous and the unpractical on his own side, who would insist on imperilling a good bill in the attempt to make it better. Finally, the peroration—delivered in a voice which had been carefully economised, and, therefore, was quite fresh at the close—finally, the peroration was just a little bit stilted, and even a trifle commonplace. The Premier's speech had brought the House to the Speaker's hour for retiring for tea, and then came the inevitable lacuna. Mr. Gibson gave a little briskness to the occasion by a sonorous onslaught, and Lord Randolph Churchill later on certainly made proceedings lively by a series of attacks, most of which elicited emphatic denial. He reproached Lord Hartington with approval of female suffrage; Lord Hartington explained that the reporters had substituted "women" for "whom;" he reiterated the charge, and Lord Hartington again explained; he reiterated the charge again, and then Sir William Harcourt purple with rage, rose to ask whether it was usual—but he had scarcely got to that point when he had to bow to a storm of Conservative cries to order. Similarly Lord Randolph Churchill accused Mr. Fowler of never having uttered a single speech or given a single vote against coercion. Therefore Mr. Fowler rose to explain that he had both voted and spoken several times against coercion, and Lord Randolph once more refused to withdraw. At last he made a good hit when, taking up a statement of Mr Gibson's that the Liberal party worshipped Mr. Gladstone, he asked when Sir William Harcourt began to worship Mr. Gladstone—a painful reminder of past passages between these two statesmen which Sir William Harcourt received in glum introspection, but which Mr Gladstone listened to with eyes that beamed over his binoculars. This done, Mr. Blennerhassett modestly proposed an adjournment. A universal howl burst from Radicals and Parnellites—it was but twelve o'clock, and there was no apparent reason why the House should adjourn, even to hear a spoken essay from the member for Kerry. Mr. Gladstone protested, but Sir Stafford Northcote seized the chance of an adjournment moved from the Ministerial side, and an adjournment was agreed to, amid the repressed sighs of the Premier, and the loud murmuring of the followers of Mr. Parnell.

INTERESTING DEBATE.

The London papers just received by the mail bring the following interesting report of a debate in the House on several very amusing Budget items :—

In the House of Commons at a late hour yesterday morning, on the vote of £7,020. for the repayment to the Civil Contingencies Fund of certain miscellaneous advances, Mr. Labouchere moved the reduction of the vote by £1,548, 9s. 4d. Of this sum the Committee, he said, were asked to pay £548. 9s. 4d. because the eldest son of the Peince of Wales had been given the Garter. The Garter, as was well known, was not an order given for merit, but was often given to some peer and usually to Royalties. He did not care who got it, but it seemed that it was usual that when this decoration was given certain fees were paid. One fee was paid to the Dean of Windsor, and if gentlemen liked to pay this fee there was no objection to that; but when this decoration was given to a young gentleman simply because he had done the world the benefit of coming into it, he did object that the Committee should be called upon to give the Dean of Windsor and other persons the sum of £545. He hoped the Committee would agree with him that a division should be taken on this item of the vote. The vote also included an item of £920. for special packets for the conveyance of distinguished persons between Dover and Calais. He asked for details of these expenses. When the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh went across to the Continent for their own amusement it cost £160., for the Duke and Duchess of Connaught there was a charge of £120., for the Duchess of Teck £40., for the Duke of Cambridge £40., for the Prince of Wales £200., for the Crown Princess of Germany £80., and the Duke and Duchess of Mecklenberg £120. Enormous sums were expended on Royal yachts, and yet not only in the case of our own Royalties had these passages across the Channel to be paid for, but for everyone connected with Royalty on the Continent who came here a packet had positively to be taken at the price of £40. to bring her over and another to take her back. He had the greatest respect for these august personages—quite as much as he ought to have—but he really could not see why they should not come in the ordinary packets. The House had often had occasion to protest against this outrageous waste. When our own Royalties took a special train they had not the effrontery to call upon Parliament to pay for these special trains. Why then, if they took special packets, should the country be called upon to pay for it? He thought he saw a blush mantling the Radical cheek of his hon. friend the Secretary for the Treasury—(laughter)—and he would be glad to hear how his hon. friend defended these charges.—In reply to the Chairman, Mr. Labouchere said, amid laughter, that he included the 9s. 4d. in the sum he proposed to deduct from the vote.—Mr. Healy rose, but in response to cries of "Courtney" gave way to the Secretary for the Treasury.—Mr Courtney explained that her Majesty and the children of her Majesty were entitled to use one of the ships of the navy. To use them, however, would be extremely inconvenient and much more expensive to the Admiralty, and it was really a cheap commutation to have a packet carrying Royal personages across for £40. instead of a ship being ordered round. As to the fees of the Garter, it was the custom that when a Royal personage obtained the Garter the fees should be paid by the Government. The chief fees were connected with the placing of the Knight's banner, £41. was paid to the Registrar, £90. to the Garter King, £20. to Black Rod, a similar sum to the singing boys, and another sum to the Chelsea drummer. (Laughter).—Mr. Thorold Rogers asked whether it was supposed that if a gunboat went once round to the Channel for the conveyance of Royal personages, it would ever be allowed to go twice.—Mr. Monk asked under what statute the Royal Family had the right of which the Secretary to the Treasury spoke.—Mr. Courtney was surprised at the question. This was no statute right but an ancient prescriptive right.—Mr. Illingworth commented on the fact that while the Treasury could not afford to pay the travelling expenses of the Technical Education Commission there should be votes of this reckless character year after year. Surely the Royal yachts should be available for the service charged for in this vote.—Mr. James asked that the authorities of the Admiralty should be communicated with on this subject.—The Chancellor of the Exchequer undertook to inquire at the Admiralty, but his impression was that it would cost more to send round the Royal yachts.—Mr. A. O'Connor thought it would strengthen the hands of the Financial Secretary to the Treasury if this vote was refused.—Mr. T. D. Sullivan wanted to know what control the Committee would have over the votes if they were to listen to this argument.—Mr. Illingworth said that as the same answer could always be given in the case of a vote to meet advances from the Civil Contingencies Fund, there was no way of dealing with this subject except by way of post mortem proceedings, as it were. (Laughter.)—Mr. Rogers suggested that the cash might be made up on the Treasury Bench. (Laughter.)—Mr. Healy informed the Treasury that it would be safer to put down any sum of this kind under miscellaneous Irish law charges, for he had noticed how the Liberal party strained at gnats and swallowed camels, and while objecting to this small expenditure, had calmly swallowed the £20,000. for miscellaneous Irish law charges. If they had a Queen they must pay for her. (Cries of "Order.") Eventually the Committee divided. For Mr. Labouchere's amendment, 26; against 45.—The vote was then agreed to, and the House adjourned shortly before four o'clock.

MR. HENRY IRVING AND THE "HOG ARISTOCRACY."

"During his recent engagement in Chicago," says the News Letter of that city, "scarcely an evening was allowed to pass over without some kind of dinner, supper, or reception being prepared in his honour. Being a stranger in Chicago, and a stranger to the habits of Chicago people, Mr. Irving accepted the compliments tendered him in the spirit in which he supposed they were given. He very naturally imagined that the aristocracy of Chicago through its principal members desired to express an appreciation of his talents' and that beyond this point their hospitality could have no object. That is just where Mr. Irving failed to understand our local aristocrats, and so that he may not fall into the same error again, we think it just as well to put him right on the subject. In the first place, Chicago aristocracy is composed of a class which has been very appropriately known for years past throughout the country as "Hog Aristocracy." We are under the impression that this title owes its birth to the pork packers of the city, who by reason of their profitable business and their accumulated wealth farmed a basis of Chicago society. At any rate, Chicago society! (save the mark) is essentially a money market into which any illiterate, coarse bred vulgar brute with a few dollars may enter and receive a royal porcine welcome, but into which a gentleman of good birth, education and refinement, but without means, can never gain admittance. Now it naturally follows that Chicago society and its leaders work for vulgar show and notoriety and whatever attentions were shown to Mr. Irving were to be repaid, and were, as a matter of fact, amply repaid by the reports which appeared in the Tribune the following day. We know of an instance where one individual who formed part of a reception committee on one of these advertising occasions, actually purchased a thousand copies of a paper, on which his name appeared in close proximity to that of Mr. Irving. These he mailed broadcast through the country, certainly not in appreciation of Mr. Irving's genius, but merely to let his brother aristocrats in the tallow business learn what a regular 'dawg' he was. Then, again, we had imitators of the 'aristocracy,' one or two sensible business men worth hardly enough money to be considered as belonging to the charmed circle, fired by the example set them, issued invitations, and tried to work up a little advertising snap of their own. On one or two of these Mr. Irving very properly sat down.

EDITOR'S TABLE

The fete at La Plata on Tuesday went off "à merveille." No hitch of any kind occurred, in the train, at table, or at Te Deum. There was more than enough provender for gentle and simple, and everybody returned to town well pleased, and with a more favourable opinion of the future of La Plata. Full particulars will be found in another column.

Madame Roca with her children arrived back from Cordova yesterday, and crowds of friends visited President Roca's residence last evening to welcome this distinguished lady back after her long trip to the Cordova mountains.

Thanks to our enterprising friends Dewey & Co. we had London papers of 20th ult. yesterday as the clock was striking noon. There is nothing striking in them. Osman Digna's Arabs are completely demoralised, and more fighting is unlikely. There is one ugly report that Khartoum is in a bad way, and that Chinese Gordon's head has found its way to the point of a Mohammedan lance. This, however, was said before and turned out false. P.S.—Since writing this Havas sends bad news. Khartoum has fallen and Chinese Gordon is the Mahdi's prisoner. If they touch a hair of his head, an Anglo-Indian army of 30,000 men will be sent to avenge him.

All the Great Britainers and Spaniards in town are invited to the meeting to-night at 74 Defensa, to organise honours for the anniversary of Shakespeare and Cervantes. Another meeting will be held to-morrow night, to name Committees, etc. Our subscribers must rub up their Shakespearian lore for the occasion.

The news from Rio about coffee is bad. All the speculators are overloaded with the stuff, and the papers are asking "What is the matter with Coffee?" Not a word about poor Chicory, the guide, philosopher and friend of the nobler staple.

As announced in our advertising columns, there will be a grand concert in the Scotch Church next week. The members of the chorus have been engaged for several weeks in preparing the music, under the able direction of the conductor of the choir of the Scotch Church, Maestro Melani. We hear on good authority that the Maestro has worked up his team to perfection point, and that the concert will be the great musical event of the season. The grand new organ of the church, a superb instrument cased in mahogany, and the finest of its size in this country, will take a prominent part in the programme.

Cordoba is planning a new Rural Code, drawn up by Mr. Isaias Gil. Any of our subscribers who are interested in the matter can see a copy of Mr. Gils's project at our office.

"Rara avis in terra"! We absolutely saw a house to let yesterday, in Calle Lavalle, opposite Dr. Peacan's. It is as hard to find a house to let now in town as a needle in a bundle of straw.

Another new colleague turned up on our Table yesterday morning—El Poeta. Its name gives an idea of its contents. We hope it will survive its birth; but poetry is a drug in this country; every Argentine is born a poet.

The news from the West Coast is that the Foreign Affairs Minister of Peru has broken off relations with the representatives of England, France, Germany, Italy, Spain, the United States and this country, because they have not yet recognised the Government of President Iglesias. The French Minister took down the National arms from his Legation at once, and sent for some war ships.

Greenwich for ever and the sky over it! The Argentine Geographical Institute reports to the Minister of Education that it is entirely in favour of making the Greenwich Meridian the general one, and expects the Argentine delegate to vote for it at the coming Conference in Washington. Madame la France wants the Paris Meridian to be chosen, but it has no chance; the world at large means to stick to old Greenwich.

As the concert in aid of the indigent musicians comes off to-morrow night, the Committee of the German Singing Academy, have resolved to postpone till next week the beginning of the regular rehearsals.

We regret to announce the death of Mrs. Hannah Somers, aged 74 years, and well known in this city. Funeral leaves Calle Cochabamba, 512, to-day at 2 p.m.

The meal for the general public at La Plata on Tuesday was decidedly "square." Sixty-five oxen, a thousand boxes of sardines, ten thousand apples, twelve thousand cigars, and wine "ad libitum" were consumed. In spite of this profuse hospitality, not a "drunk" or "disorderly" was to be seen—a highly creditable fact.

Number 7889 won the 20,000 pats. in the Montevidean Lottery yesterday.

General Sarmiento will return from Chile across the Andes, and great preparations are being made in Mendoza to give him a grand reception there. Crossing the Cordillera at this season is a very stiff business for a man of the General's time of life; but he seems equal to anything.

Mr. E. Moreno, Argentina's talented representative in Montevideo, came up yesterday morning, and was rowed ashore in the "falua de gala" of the Capitania.

The poet, D'Amicis, will give his first Conference next Tuesday in the Colon Theatre. He has selected "Mazzini" for his theme the first night, and the second will be devoted to Garibaldi, "the hero of the century"—according to his countrymen."

On the 19th inst. the members of the Club de Gimnasia y Esgrima will give a grand Assault-at-arms in the Colon theatre under the auspices of the Damas de Beneficencia. The gains will be devoted to the benefit of the 'Escuela de Ciegos' and 'Consultorio Oftalmologico' which are under the protection of these charitable ladies. The Sociedad de Beneficencia is, we are proud to say, one of the most flourishing institutions of which Buenos Aires can boast to-day, and we hope that the generosity of the Gymnasium Club and the merits of the society will meet with a hearty and voluntary response. One of the chief attractions will be a splendid orchestra under Maestro Montenegro, the programme including tit-bits from Semiramide, Africana, Zampa, and the Hugonotes with some of Gungl's delicious waltzes. There is no help for it. Everyone must go.

ON 'CHANGE.

April 16th, 1884

Cedulas A	101
Cedulas E	85½
Cedulas F	85½
National Bank Shares....	139½
Nat. Bank Certificados..	57 o/o prem.

The first news on 'Change this morning was a fresh rumour about the negotiation of the 30 million loan; offers to the Government having been sent from Europe through the leading house of Mallmann & Co. Of course, until Dr. Plaza returns nothing will be done in the affair, but all the brokers talked of the matter this morning and the conversation tended rather to improve the market than otherwise. Cedulas A are firm at 101 and E at 8 ½; F gave slightly way, opening at 86 and closing at 85½. National Bank Shares seem more looked for on time than for cash, and the heaviest transactions are for the end of May. For the end of April 1,850 sold, opening at 139½ and closing at ½, and for May 2,450 sold as high as 141, closing at 140½. But the most marked advance of all stocks was in National Bank Certificates, one lot of 100 s.ld at 47, being equal to 57 o/o premium, and many buyers at this rate.
Notwithstanding the general upward tendency of the stock market exchange keeps the same dead level, and all the rumours of loans made and to be made have not given ½ more to the present low quotations; people are astonished at the exchange market Perhaps now that there is great probability of the 30 million loan being done, exchange will advance, but for takers the rates rule even weaker than last week, and one large German house has drawn all it had to draw at 2 francs on Antwerp.
The following were the sales at the ring during official hours:—

Cedulas—
For cash A 5,050 at 101
For cash E 7,500 at 85½
For April 19th E 2,650 at 85½
For April 30th E 65,000 at 85½-⅝-¾-⅝
For cash F 30,450 at 86-85½-¾-¼-86-85½
For April 30th F 10,000 at 85½
Sales, 120,650
National Bank Shares—
For April 30th 1,350 at 139½-⅝-¾-⅝
For May 31st 2,450 at 140½-141-140½
Sales, 3,800
National Bank Certificates, 30 o/o paid—
For cash 100 at $47

Letters from London say that the Transandine Debenture Loan was a decided success subscribed for twice over, and the debentures are now at 1 prem.
The Provincial Government land auction on the 14th inst. is much talked of on 'Change; the prices paid average about 300,000 $ per league, which for land on 8 years time and inside the ditch is thought to be very cheap. We hear, however, from well informed parties that it was poor land, many people had gone over it and it is considered well sold.
To-morrow Mr Freyre, of the Government Land Office, holds another very important land auction, some 80,000 hectares. This land is said to be better than that sold on Monday, and will be bisected by the projected new railway from Mellizas to Trenquelauquen, the Government has, however, reserved a league on either side of the railway for emigration or colony purposes. In the opinion of brokers these lands will sell at a higher figure than those sold on Monday. Plans of the lands can be seen at our office, the great inducement to purchase is the very favorable credit term allowed by the Government, and the cleanliness of the titles.
A wool exporter stated on 'Change to-day that he has loaded bales of 40 ar. each for Havre at the extraordinary low freight of 10 frcs. per ton, being 50 $ per bale, and notes that the train freight on this wool from Chivilcoy cost 120 m/c per bale, and the lighter etc. to the steamer in the Roads 45 m/c per bale. These high charges contrast with the low freight to Europe. Were freights as in former years 65 to 70s. per ton, wools would be selling in the market at 40 to 50 m/c per arrobe.
With much pleasure we state that the courts have just decided the important case of Duggan versus West Railway in Mr Duggan's favor, the action was brought for damages caused to property near Once Setiembre, the railways rails being laid on the property. No court in the world could have given any other judgment.
Mr. Carvalho's suit against the National Bank for a fine of 50,000 pats for the Bank having made an unauthorized emission has resulted in a judgment against Mr. Carvalho and exonerating the bank from all fine, &c.
Chevalier Hairby, was welcomed on 'Change he returns immediately to his steamer being very busy on board owing to the delay in Montevideo; he sails on 22nd inst with mails.
The La France sails on 18th and will take an unusually large list of passengers, the exchange business done to-day was for this mail.
The sale of two leagues of National lands, some 15 to 20 leagues beyond Trenquelauquen for 75,000 $ is reported; the land was bought a few years ago for 35,000 per league.
Mr George Ponsonby Craufurd's many friends in the Plate will be pleased to hear that he has opened a sporting agency in this city, where the best and latest racing advices will always be had. Mr. Craufurd's new office is announced in our advertisement column. Although we are not much inclined to racing, we shall certainly attend Mr Craufurd's first auctions of horses and hope to make a few dollars by following his advice.
At afterhours the share market at last touched 140 for the end of the month and 141½ for the end of May, the highest prices the stock ever reached since the Bank was created; about 1,000 shares sold at 139¾ and about 200 at 140. Market closed at 139¾ sellers. Cedulas at afterhours were firm, but forgotten, and closed at 85¾ E seller and 86 F seller.
Freights rule very low, bales engaged for Havre at 10 francs.
Exchange, bills passed at from 47⅞ to 47¾, and francs, 'artista' paper, at 5.02.
Wools and other produce rule without change; wools keep arriving from far off railway stations, and the clip this last season will surpass every anticipation.
A petition to put up the telephone in the Club was freely signed on 'Change.
Lands rule steady, and for certain camps there is always good demand. The last Government auction was most animated, although the lands were poor.
Mr. E. Massot sold yesterday the property in Calle Corrientes No. 791 for the sum of 3,100 m/n. Buyer Mrs. Josefina T. de Romero.
Dr. Carlos de Castro, Minister in Banda Oriental, is preparing a series of decrees relating to the refining in the breeding of horses, cows and sheep. The decrees will be laid before the Rural Society of Uruguay to be commented on.
Mr. Gragorini has arrived at Carmelo with the object of purchasing 1,000,000 paving stones from Mr. John Sampaito, manager of the Island Dos Hermanos.
From the Plaza Once we have the following:—

Messrs. Nuñez and Co. propose to build a Mercado Modelo, like that in Plaza Lorea, at the south end of the town, near the Mercado Independencia. By all means let them do it, and abolish the radius iniquity.

Our new colleague La Mañana won't allow any "cliche" in its advertising columns. Bravo! colleague. We wish we could follow your example; but our advertising patrons will insist on having hideous caricatures at the head of their advertisements, and we are their very obedient servants.

An Italian sailor, named Ratti, jumped overboard the other day in the Outer Roads, from his ship, the Pierro G, to get his cap, which had fallen into the river. He got the cap, and then went straight to the bottom with it.

Letters from Trieste say that the Argentine Naval Cadets who are there to bring out the new transport Argentina, are very popular in that port, owing to their discreet and gentlemanly conduct. This is very satisfactory, as discretion is a rare virtue amongst young sailors, of any nationality.

The last train from La Plata on Tuesday was the longest passenger train that ever ran over that line. We forget the number of carriages, but it stretched from the Custom House to the passenger mole, and only had one powerful engine. It reached the Central Station at 9 p.m.

The Decauville Railway at La Plata is to be worked as a tramway. The fare will be 20 cents.

In Santiago del Estero they have had several gentle shocks of earthquake lately, but nothing sufficiently strong to do any damage. Years and years have elapsed since an earthquake shock was felt in that province, and the alarm on this recent occasion was proportionately great.

At the interment of Carnival this year in Ampurdan, Cataluña, the man who represented Carnival was carried lying in a coffin, and when the procession arrived at the place of burial, he was found to be dead in earnest. The mock funeral ended in a real one.

The French dramatic company at the Opera House is an excellent one. We have never seen better comedy acting on any stage than in "Les Trois chapeaux" on Tuesday evening. The audience was fairly convulsed with laughter the whole evening. We recommend a night at the Opera House to those who are well up in French; not what Sydney Smith called "Dover French", but the genuine tongue; otherwise the epigrammatic "nuances" of this laughable play are lost to the spectator.

The Provincial magnates will be able to dodge the inconveniences of a winter in La Plata by making use of the new arrangement with the Southern Railway. The first train for La Plata now leaves Plaza Constitucion at 9.40, and reaches the new capital at 11.20. The return train leaves La Plata at 5 p.m. and arrives at Plaza Constitucion at 6.45.

A new York paper is responsible for the following:—

"Miss Eva Bonanza Mackay is at the head of a fashionable "slumming" society in Paris, and makes periodical visits among the poorest of the poor, dispensing a good deal of money. The London slummers give more good advice than money."

The Porvenir of Bahia Blanca says that the inauguration fetes of the railway extension will take place in Buenos Aires, not there, and that the Bahia-Blancians are woefully disappointed because they will not see Governor Rocha on the grand occasion. The damage done by the floods to the railway line is repaired, Messrs Wells and Barber displayed immense energy in the emergency and put on 1400 navvies to work day and night. They are not done with the inundations yet. On the 9th the Naposta rose again and flooded the 'quintas.' The tidal wave on Sunday week rushed in during the night, over the crab grounds. Mr. French, the telegraph clerk, was washed out of bed at 3 a.m. and managed to reach the Sub-Prefectura with great difficulty, with his Morse instrument on his shoulder. His "casilla" was washed away and smashed to bits; and his clothes, furniture, money and the office papers, lamps, tables and pictures are all gone off to the Coast of Africa. Several vessels in the port went on the crab-beds. The railway mole was greatly damaged. The gale was very fierce from the S.W. On the 9th there was another high tide and more damage done in the old port. All the lumber on the "barrancas" was washed away, as well as several bales of goods landed from the Porvona. At Maldonado the sea smashed the 'casillas' and washed away a heap of goods. The pontoon Manuela sank with a lot of wine, sugar and tienda goods on board. In fact our Bahia Blanca friends will long remember the equinoctial gales of March and April 1884.

NOTA—Inutil nos parece llamar la atencion sobre este importante remate pues de todos es demasiado conocido el valor que han tomado los terrenos y las propiedades a inmediaciones de la estacion 11 de Setiembre. El punto no puede ser mas comercial, pues hay tramways en todas direcciones. El terreno es alto y sumamente higiénico al aire. Los lotes estan al alcance de todos los bolsillos, pues la venta segun judicial han sido tasados como para regalarlos.
La propiedad cuya adquisicion recomendamos a la gente de dinero es construida a todo costo habiendo sido tasada en la mitad de lo que costo.
Titulos perfectos.
